Amazon Web Services is, put it simply, the largest and most widely adopted cloud provider in the world, used by everyone from the smallest of startups and hobbyists to well, the United States government and 90% of Fortune 500 companies.

It is a behemoth of a platform with over 200 services (most of which are fully-featured and quite comprehensive in and of themselves) and global geographical presence, with infrastructure in all the seven continents serving 245 countries and territories.
